

Few Can Afford

The ability to follow in your ancestors' steps, in safe passage wherever you go because of your wealth, both financial and social.

Privilege is a luxury

Safety is a luxury.

The ability to buy a safe way home, to not worry if you've missed your last bus home or to worry that your taxi is going to put you in your overdraft

Access is a luxury

Safety is a luxury

The ability to travel without loud passengers spewing sleezy words all over themselves, on a cold stark shuttle to nowhere.

Comfort is a luxury

Safety is a luxury

The ability to pay for protection as an essential, no thoughts that the danger that surrounds you is constant, because it doesn't exist in your reality.

Naivety is a luxury

Safety is a luxury

The ability to decide how you're going to travel, an privilege to find the fastest, the cheapest, the many options you have to get home.

Choice is a luxury

Safety in a luxury.

The ability to exist as yourself, without fear or repercussions to your existence, without the need to shrink down and pretend you are invisible.

Authenticity is a luxury

Safety is a luxury